UNDERSTANDING ZONE STRENGTH

HOW TO READ THE BUY AND SELL ZONES

Zone strength shows how much structural evidence exists at a zone, based on historical price reactions.

STRENGTH SCALE

0 – 39	WEAK	Limited structural evidence. Higher chance of being broken.
40 – 59	MODERATE	Some structural evidence. Can still be tested or broken.
60 – 79	STRONG	Good structural evidence. Higher likelihood of a reaction.
80 – 99	VERY STRONG	Very strong structural evidence. High likelihood of a reaction.

HIGHER ZONE STRENGTH MEANS STRONGER EVIDENCE

Based on historical structure and confirmed reactions.

PRICE REACTIONS SHOW REAL MARKET RESPONSE

Tells you how many confirmed reaction episodes the zone has recorded.

THE STRENGTH PERCENTAGE IS A STRUCTURAL READING

Not a probability or guaranteed outcome. Use with proper risk management.

BEST PRACTICE WORKFLOW

A PRACTICAL ROUTINE FOR BETTER CONSISTENCY

01

CHOOSE YOUR MARKET & TIMEFRAME

Select the market you want to trade (e.g. BTCUSD, XAUUSD, Forex) and a timeframe that fits your trading style.

02

MARK THE ACTIVE BUY AND SELL ZONES

Identify the current buy and sell strength zones on your chart using VIP Algos.

03

WATCH PRICE LOCATION AND NEAREST ZONE

Check where price is relative to the zones and note the nearest active zone.

04

WAIT FOR A CLEAR REACTION OR CONFIRMATION CANDLE

Look for a visible reaction at the zone (e.g. wick rejection or a confirmation candle).

05

PLAN THE TRADE WITH RISK MANAGEMENT

Define your entry, stop loss, take profit and position size based on your trading plan and risk tolerance.

06

REVIEW THE REACTION COUNT AND OVERALL CONTEXT

Check the indicator's reaction count and consider the overall market context before making a decision.

IMPORTANT NOTES

- Use the zones as a decision-support tool, not a promise of performance.
- Combine the indicator with sound risk management.
- Lower timeframes may produce faster zone interactions; higher timeframes may offer broader structure.
- Educational use only.
